A Message from the President

What you can get from, do for, your chamber...

This month we will all see, as chamber members, the distribution of our 2011-2012 Lincoln City Chamber of Commerce Member Directory. Our Executive Director, Linda Roy and many of our chamber members have worked very hard making sure they have published what is one of our most valuable assets we can utilize as chamber members. After living with my directory in place of the local phone book for the past several years, I have felt the need to pass on how the majority of our membership gains tremendous value from our directory.

I operate a business, just as many of you do, that requires local services on a regular basis, including plumbers, electricians, printers, contractors, banks, and every other service that you could imagine a large restaurant would need (and there are so many). The services that are required for this single business total into the thousands, if not tens of thousands, of dollars every year. In the past, with just the phone book, our products and services were not always local, and I wasn't always sure whether they were Chamber members or not.

After making sure that my Chamber Directory was my first resource for products and vendors, I've not only found that I am able to support the local economy more, I am also able to work with chamber members first, and network with those who might be more inclined to patronize my business as well. Using our Chamber Directory keeps money in Lincoln City, helps build local relationships, and definitely adds to the strength and value of OUR Lincoln City Chamber of Commerce.

So as you all receive your Lincoln City Chamber of Commerce Business Directory 2011-2012, move over that local phone book, plant your Directory squarely on your desk, and support your fellow chamber members. From personal experience I can promise that you will be happy you did.

Weekly Business Tip from SCORE Chapter 0460

Greetings! Customers like you make doing business a real pleasure.

This Weeks Business Tip is: Have passion for your business!

Work should be fun. Your passion will help you overcome difficult moments and persuade people to work for you and want to do business with you. Passion can't be taught. When it wanes, as it surely will in difficult times, take some quiet time. Whether it be an hour or a week, take inventory of all the reasons you started the business and why you like being your own boss. That should renew your passion.

Establishing Credibility On The Internet

Staples of Online Reliability: A Guide for E-Businesses Lake Oswego, Ore. – Oct. 4, 2011 –

With the anonymity of the Internet and scams circulating online, it can be difficult for businesses to prove credibility online. Websites, social networking sites, online advertisements and emails are all e-communications that businesses can use to help build consumer trust. Better Business Bureau serving Alaska, Oregon and Western Washington establishes eight staples of online reliability:

1. Be open and honest. The key to building trust online is transparency. Openly identify the nature, location, and ownership of the business. List specific contact people on all business licensing records and website registrations.

2. Be available and responsive. Add contact information to online ads; include multiple—if not all—contact options, such as addresses, email addresses, phone numbers and fax lines. Designate addresses as physical locations or post office boxes. Always include business names on voicemail greetings; also, ensure that caller IDs display real business phone numbers, not blocked or anonymous calls.

3. Clearly disclose all policies, guarantees and procedures. Provide shipping details, including known delays or inventory shortages. Allow consumers to review and confirm transactions before sales are complete. Post-purchase, provide receipts summarizing transaction details.

4. Publish a privacy policy. On websites, disclose: What information is collected; with whom it is shared; how it can be corrected; how it is secured; how policy changes will be communicated; and how to address personal data concerns. BBB offers instructions on how to create a privacy policy; check out a sample.

5. Safeguard privacy and protect data. If collecting payment, personal history or other sensitive information—ensure that it is transmitted securely. Research Transport Layer Security or Secure Sockets Layer certificate providers. Comply with Oregon's laws to protect data and avoid data breach threats; visit BBB's Data Security—Made Simpler site for free tools on securing information.

6. Properly dispose of sensitive data. Safely discard expired paperwork at BBB's free document shredding event on Oct. 22, 2011, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Landmark Ford at 12000 SW 66th Ave. in Tigard, Ore. Check the records retention schedule and oregon.bbb.org/secure-your-id for more details.

7. Respect customer contact preferences. If customers say "do not call" or opt-out from receiving correspondence, promptly honor requests. Never share customer contact information with affiliates or outside parties, unless authorized to do so; if permitted, get written consent.

8. Subscribe to BBB's Code of Business Practices. Visit bbb.org for more tips. ### Better Business Bureau serving Alaska, Oregon and Western Washington: Working to advance marketplace trust, BBB is a neutral not-for-profit organization supported by BBB Accredited Businesses. BBB provides ethical business standards, BBB Business Reviews, Charity Reviews, complaint handling, marketplace events and tips.

Save energy in cooler weather

Have your HVAC system serviced to ensure it's working properly.

Inspect heating ducts and seal any leaks.

Check air filters throughout the building and change regularly during the heating season. Dirty or clogged filters reduce air flow, and increase energy use.

Look for and seal air leaks around windows, doors, and where plumbing or ductwork runs through building walls or roofing to the outside.

Use programmable thermostats to set the temperature to 68F during the day and to 55-60F after business hours.

Install locking covers on your thermostats to prevent unauthorized setting changes.

For additional money-saving energy advice and information, register or log in to Pacific Power's Business Solutions Toolkit at www.pacificpower.net/toolkit.

Our Committees - Ambassadors

I want to thank the Chamber for sending me to the Statewide Ambassador convention in Springfield. Each Chamber is expected to decorate a table for Saturday's breakfast and bring two baskets to be given away as door prizes. Thank you to Tanger Outlet Center, Roadhouse

101 and Rusty Truck Brewing, Nelscott Cafe, Lincoln City Liquor Outlet, Mo's, North Lincoln Sanitary, both the VCB and Urban Renewal of the City of Lincoln City, fellow Ambassadors Papa Harold and Linda Wagner, Karen at the Nelscott Wine Shop for putting together one of the baskets, and Chinook Winds Casino Resort (and the help of Teresa Simmons) for both a basket and table decorations. Our table turned out really well - with margarita glasses, kites, calendars, posters of the different urban renewal districts, coffee and coffee mugs at each place, with a blender and margarita mix as the centerpiece (won by an additional person). It was a fun time, encouraging everyone to come visit Lincoln City and hearing about everyone's fun experiences here. There were also several good speakers, with lots of information about networking. Thank you to everyone who helped send me to convention. I hope many more of you can join me next year in Grants Pass!

Susan Wahlke, Ambassador Committee Chair

Education Committee Keeping Our Businesses Current

One of the functions of the Education Committee is to ensure an interesting pool of guest speakers to inform our general membership at the Luncheon Forums each month at 11:45 am.

Katelyn Hordichok highlights the United Way presence in Lincoln County

Fire Chief Don Baker addresses the group on issues of managing an effective volunteer fire department.

Government Affairs Committee Staying Connected With Our Representatives

This important committee is designed to provide a voice from the business community on selected issues which impact business, by observing and reporting on governmental issues that affect either local businesses or the community in general and disseminate the information to Members. Don Williams, owner of Nelscott Café, is the board liaison for the Government Affairs Committee. Here's what he has to say:

Greetings from your governmental affairs committee. As we are just getting started this will be a short report. I envision our reports being formatted thusly:

National issues, state issues, county issues then city issues. I recognize that city issues will have the most immediate impact on members but many of the "larger" and more long lasting issues are of course coming from the state and federal government.

Nationally unemployment numbers are still high with little prospect of downward change. Congress has yet to pass a budget as required and the full financial and regulatory impact of new health care mandates will not be known until fully implemented.

So much of the bill is left to the discretion of the Secretary of Health and Human Services that businesses will have little warning of specific requirements and costs.

Statewide: The biggest issue would have to be the voter mandated increase in the state's minimum wage for 2012. Currently at 8.50 per hour the new rate increases .30 per hour to 8.80 per hour keeping Oregon one of the two highest in the nation (WA being the other). Many union/public service wages are tied to the minimum so along with increasing inflation we can expect price increases/costs to follow.

Lincoln City: Beyond the continuing VRD debate that will affect property owners rights as well as property management businesses along with property maintenance, retail and utility sales the city has passed a new sign ordinance. As I understand the new rules: 1. A-frame signs are no longer included in the maximum square footage allowed for signage. 2. the A-frames must still be registered with the city, not impede right of ways or ADA rights. 3. A-frame signs must be removed from sidewalks at the close of business. Any signs left out or not registered or in noncompliance with regulations are subject to confiscation by an undefined agent of the city and will be held until an undetermined fine has been paid. If I've gotten any of these wrong please feel free to correct me.

Thanks for you time and feel free to contact me directly at 503-810-5364 or email at nelscottcafe@yahoo.com if you have any items that you might want included in future newsletters or you're interested in joining the governmental affairs committee.

Remember, if you don't take part in the decisions that effect your life, someone else will.

Volunteer Buzz

What a busy, fun, exciting month it has been! Our Artober Brewfest was a well-attended, full-of-fun event and we even worked around a few little misty sprinkles. But of course, we're Oregonians! Lots of smiling faces, full tummies, toe-tapping people and happy kiddies made our inaugural event a huge success and one we can hardly wait to begin to start working on for next year. Thank you all for making it a huge success – participants, festival goers, and VOLUNTEERS! And, did I mention the fire dancers? What a mesmerizing way to end the day!

Speaking of volunteers, we are pleased to announce another new volunteer that has joined our fold. Rosalie Smith is a full-fledged coastal Oregonian, beginning her adventurous life on the south coast, Bandon area, majoring in math and physical education, and going on to teaching PE in Salem. She and her parents purchased a feed store in Bandon which they owned and ran for many years, after which they started their own landscaping, yard maintenance and construction business. She is the mother of twin girls, raised sheep and draft horses, built and sold geodesic homes, custom designed stained glass windows, both for homes and churches, and taught school.

Rosalie moved to Lincoln City last spring mostly retiring from substitute teaching but intending to continue her custom windows after getting her studio set up. Her desire to get involved with our community led her to volunteer at our Chamber, eagerly awaiting her next adventure.

We're pleased to add her to our volunteer staff and invite you to stop by and greet her. Better yet, if you have a couple of spare hours and wish to share your talents in an active, fun, and positive environment, consider becoming a volunteer yourself. We'd love to have you!

Notes from Nonni: Making the most of your Chamber website

Did you know you have the ability to make changes to your Chamber website listing?

When your business was added to the website, you were assigned a username and password. These were emailed to the contact you provided at that time. That password enables you to login and access the information that displays on your listing. This gives control to you—to update a change in management or location, to post winter hours or to highlight a special event. Of course, the Chamber office can assist you in making changes, as well.

To enhance your listing, consider adding your company logo. For a one-time fee of $25, we can place your logo directly left of your business information. This will appear on all info pages, providing the professional visual component your logo was designed to present.

Make the most of this advertising tool. In the Chamber office we talk to people each day who are looking at our website as they are calling us. We refer many others to the site in response to their inquiries. The important thing is to make sure that our website visitors are seeing accurate information, otherwise the advertising investment is lost.

So take a few minutes to peruse your listing. Is it accurate? Are you represented in every category possible? Does it convey the information you wish a prospective customer/client to see? Call us with any questions. We want the website to work FOR you!
